TALLAHASSEE, FL – The Florida League of Cities (FLC), celebrating its 100th anniversary as the united voice for Florida’s municipal governments, announced the election of its officers for the 2022-2023 term. City of Port St. Lucie Vice Mayor Jolien Caraballo was elected President of the Florida League of Cities. She was elected by FLC membership and will serve a one-year term.

“It’s an honor to be with you today, not just to celebrate 100 years of Florida League of Cities’ accomplishments and successes but, to kick off the next 100 years of outstanding achievements,” said Caraballo immediately following her installation. “I am incredibly humbled to have your support and serve as your next President for the upcoming year.”

Joining Caraballo are an impressive list of Florida leaders serving as officers with the Florida League of Cities for the 2022-2023 term including:

- Florida League of Cities First Vice President: Greg Ross, Mayor, City of Cooper City
- Florida League of Cities Second Vice President: Michael Blake, Mayor, City of Cocoa Beach

Caraballo was first elected to the Port St. Lucie Commission in 2016 and has served ever since. She is a member of the St. Lucie County Transportation Planning Organization, the Treasure Coast Regional League of Cities, and she serves on the Board of Directors for Graceway Village. Caraballo is a past President of the Port St. Lucie Historical Society, which she now serves as the Director of, and she previously served on the Keep PSL Beautiful Committee. She has also been a member of several of the League’s committees including the FLC Executive Committee, FAST Committee, Advocacy Committee and Resolutions Committee. In addition, Caraballo is a past Chair of FLC’s Land Use and Economic Development Committee and is a current member of the FLC Transportation and Intergovernmental Relations Committee. An active advocate at both the state and federal level, Caraballo is also a multiple-time recipient of the League’s Home Rule Hero Award.
